You are not going to become a different man in forty days.

Most devotionals are written for a man with a quiet house and a calm week. This one is not.

Forty entries, each one short enough to finish in a truck with the engine running. An anchor from scripture. Plain talk about what it has to do with the job. One drill you actually do. One prayer you can say out loud without feeling like somebody else is talking.

For the men who work while the rest of the country sleeps, and for the men who used to and are still carrying it.
